LONDON, 27th November. In the Campbell divorce case, plaintiff's counsel closed her side of the case to-day. Lady Miles was cross-examined. She said she was not aware that a cabman, bearing a letter from the Duke of Marlborough, once entered Lady Campbell's bedroom. The cabman might, witness thought, have handed Lady Campbell a letter indoors, instead of through the servant, and might have received from her a reply direct, because under Campbell might have suspected her servants. especially her husband's nurse, and afraid to intrust them with any correspondence. At this point certain letters written by the witness to they were hers. She said they were, and added that when she wrote them she thought she was writing to a man of honour, not to such a person as Lord Colin Campbell turned out to be, and that she still thought a woman's letters should Lord Campbell's nurse," Lady Miles continued, "invented the story that Lady Campbell had miscarried. The invention was made to conceal Mr. Charles F. Adams, LL.D., the American the real nature of Lady Campbell's affliction. Lord Colin Campbell had told witness that he was endeavouring to obtain all the information he possibly could against his wife in order to sue her for a divorce, and had subsequently told witness that he had failed to obtain any." Mr. Russell, plaintiff's counsel, corrected his opening statement by adding to it that Lady Campbell, when she married defendant, brought im a fortune of $30,000. Russell then gave notice that plaintiff's case was closed. Robert Ballantyne Finley opened the case for the defence. He said it afforded an expressible relief to Lord Campbell to have an oppo tunity to defend himself in open court from the gross and ornel implications which have been put upon him and from the charge of adultery, which had been trumped up. The malady from which defendant suffered was not venereal, although the result of youthful indiscretion. Lady Campbell's mother had been told the nature of defendant's ailment before marriage, but she nevertheless urged on the union, saying her daughter was willing to act merely as nurse to her husband, and even wrote to the Duke of Argyll to press upon him the fulfilment of the engagement. The marriage was authorized by the physician, who said that it was desirable that defendant should have marriage relationship

During the Easter season of 1882 the Duke of Mariborough, who had been corresponding with her, was often seen in Lady Ca upbell's company. borough and Lady Campbell at this time were oriminally intimate. They had not been before. After this Lady Campbell went to Paris, and on the journey she was chaperoned by Lady Miles. They remained in Pairs one month, the Duke of Marlborough being there also. When Lady Campball returned from Paris she sent her maid to Swit. zerland, evidently, as before said, because the Hotel and remained there with the Dake of General Buller visited Lady Campbell during her husband's absence and used to remain with her as long as three hours at a time. Once durformer played a vigorous innings, his score ing these interviews some one wanted to see Lady including two hits for five out of the playing Campbell. She came out of her room. Her hair was disarranged and she shouted, "Not at nings, going in at the fall of the first wicket home," and returned to General Buller. In the meantime Lord Campbell came home very unexpectedly, and while he was still in one of the rooms downstairs, General Buller slipped out on tip-toe without meeting the husband "That same evening Lady Campbell was taken ill. Lord Campbell remained in Leigh Court from August, 1-82, to February, 1883, and during that time-Lady Campbell went to and from London and committed adultery with Dr. Bird. Lord Campball then knew nothing about his wife's conduct, but she had a guilty conscience, and she got Soligitor Lewis to write a letter charging Lord Campbell with giving her a loathso ne disease and refusing to live with him as his wife. Lord Campbell had never heard of such a charge bofore, and of course refused to agree that they should not live as man and wife.

NEW YORK, 28th November. The Tribune's cable special from London of November 27th, says:-The revolting revelations in the Colin Campbell divorce case make every decent man regret that the court is not empowered to extend the provision of hearing cases in camera, to this sort of action. So far as the case has gone it reveals Lord Colin Campbell in a character which rouses sympathy for everybody who has had the misfortune to be connected with him, and especially for the Duke of Argyll and the Marquis of Lorne. The connection of the latter with the court must make this horrible case most painful to the Queen. London, 29th November.

In the Campbell divorce case to-day, Finley, The cricket match between Shaw's English for defence, continued this presentation of Lord have mentioned the fact to him, but this she had never done." The Judge, interrupting, said that this argument related entirely to an act of cruelty alleged in the petition as one of the grounds for divorce, and as this act of cruelty had been proven in the former trial in which plaintiff had obtained a decree of separation on that ground alone, he aust now refuse to allow the allegation to be contested, and should direct the jury to find that defendant had communicated to plaintiff some kind of disease.

Finley, resuming, said all of plaintiff's allegations in her petition were false and had been mude to intimidate, and since had been withdrawn, except one charge, the truth or falsity of which could be known only to Lady Campbell herself. The defence, however, had evidence that shed a flood of light upon Lord Colin's proceedings in Paris in regard to his charges. Allowance must be made, counsel contended, for Lord Colin's action in asking the Paris police to arrest his wife and look her up in the Prostitutes' Prison, because at that time defendant believed his wife was living there with the Duke of Marlborough. Four persons, Finley went on, were accused of having been intimate with Lady Lady Campbell had written to the Duke of Mariborough as "Dear George." He had taken ber home at 2 o'clock in the morning, gone up stairs with her and remained twenty minutes. On one occasion when he came to tes, the ser vant that took the tea up to Lady Campbell found The O. and O. steamer Occanic, with the the drawing-room door looked, and a little later found it unlocked. "On this occasion," counsel continued, "plaintiff had doubtlessly mishehaved. TONGLISH AND CHINESI DICTIONARY. WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION.

IMPERIAL QUARTOS

An Anglo Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press' Office, Hongkong, For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new jects in machinery photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance SOUTHAMPTON TO LAND PASSENGERS here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature: Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given the accents being carefully marked on the best "NECKAB," Captain H. Banr, with MAILS, of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of attained, and dispensing with those vast markins

Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English The Steamer has splendid Accommodation and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various appli-cations and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto published. For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which .

very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasion-It comprises upwards of two thousand large quarto pages. A Large REDUCTION D. PRICE is may
